EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

In January-February 2026, BOMAS Hardware tracked 1,233 SKUs across 23 categories with total outward movement of 250,972 units over 76 working days. Of these, 1,162 items (94%) recorded active sales, while 71 items (6%) had zero outward movement — a significant portion of inventory sitting idle on shelves. The calculated weekly MOQ stands at 20,527 units, representing a weekly restocking investment of approximately KES 0.

DEMAND ANALYSIS & INSIGHTS

Demand Concentration

Demand is heavily concentrated: the top 5 items alone account for 69% of all quantity moved, and the top 30 items drive 85% of total movement. This Pareto pattern is typical in hardware retail and means that a relatively small number of SKUs generate the bulk of turnover. Ensuring these high-velocity items are always in stock should be the top priority — a single day of stockout on a fast mover like Simba Cement (~1,120 units/day) can result in substantial lost revenue.

Category Value Distribution

By weekly restocking value, the top three categories are CEMENT (KES 0/wk), STEEL (KES 0/wk), and ELECTRICALS (KES 0/wk) — together accounting for 0% of the total weekly MOQ value of KES 0. These categories require the largest capital allocation and should be reviewed weekly to balance cash flow against stockout risk.

Dead Stock & Slow Movers

Dead stock — inventory that has been received but shows zero customer demand — represents 71 items (6% of tracked SKUs). In inventory management, dead stock ties up capital, occupies valuable shelf and warehouse space, increases carrying costs (estimated at 20-30% of inventory value annually), and risks obsolescence. The categories with the highest proportion of non-moving items are TANKS (3/14 items, 21% idle) and LOCKS & ACCESSORIES (2/16 items, 12% idle). These items should be reviewed for clearance sales, bundling with fast movers, return to supplier, or discontinuation to free up working capital.

Why MOQs Matter

Minimum Order Quantities (MOQs) serve as a critical planning tool that bridges the gap between customer demand and procurement decisions. By calculating MOQ as 6 times the daily average consumption (equivalent to one week's supply), BOMAS ensures: (1) sufficient stock to cover a full ordering cycle without risking stockouts, (2) a data-driven basis for purchase orders that eliminates guesswork, (3) better cash flow management by ordering only what is needed rather than over-purchasing, and (4) reduced carrying costs by avoiding excess inventory that depreciates or becomes obsolete. Regularly reviewing MOQs against actual sales trends ensures the business adapts to seasonal shifts and changing customer preferences — what moves fast in these months may slow down in other months.

Cash Flow & Capital Allocation

With a weekly restocking value of KES 0, prudent cash allocation is essential. Prioritise spending on the top-performing categories and fast movers that generate the highest turnover. For categories with high slow-mover ratios, reduce reorder quantities or pause ordering altogether until existing stock is cleared. Consider negotiating extended payment terms with suppliers of high-value categories (Cement, Steel, Timber) to smooth out weekly cash outflows. The goal is to maintain a lean inventory — enough stock to serve customers without tying up excessive capital in slow-moving or dead items.

KEY RECOMMENDATIONS

Based on the Feb-Apr 2026 movement data, the following actions are recommended:

1. Prioritise restocking the top 30 fast movers weekly — they drive 85% of all movement.
2. Conduct a dead stock clearance exercise on the 71 non-moving items — consider markdowns, bundle deals, or supplier returns.
3. Review the TANKS category (21% idle) for possible SKU rationalisation.
4. Set up weekly MOQ-based purchase orders to replace ad-hoc buying, ensuring consistent stock levels.
5. Track MOQ fulfilment rates monthly to identify categories where actual orders deviate from calculated needs.
6. Negotiate better terms with Cement and Steel suppliers given the high weekly spend (combined KES 11.4M/wk).
